

Cyndi has been volunteering at the IACP for over 7 years. In addition to being a Director currently, she has also served as Secretary and is Conference Director. She earned Member of the Year in 2012 and the President's Award in 2013. Cyndi brings her experience in event management and marketing/sales to assist the IACP in ongoing growth, focused on the yearly conferences.

As Cyndi often states (with a smile), she is not a dog trainer or canine professional. Spanning industries from semi-conductor to measurement tools to automotive, Cyndi has a proven track record of success in technical sales, program management, event management and marketing. Cyndi previously worked 15 years for Bosch in North America to include projects in Europe and China. Cyndi currently works full time in business development and program management in the automotive industry. Clients include Mercedes, Honda, Nissan, BMW, Jaguar LandRover and Audi. She volunteers her time with the IACP out of love for dogs and the people involved in ensuring high standards are met in training and rehabilitating them.

Cyndi currently resides in Birmingham, Alabama with her Chihuahua-mix Piper. She has two sons, Christian and Andrew, who live in California and one granddaughter, Kimberlyn. In her spare time, she can be found at the gym, on the tennis courts or just relaxing with her pup at home.
